Somerville, MA 02143 USA

Position: Full Stack Software Developer

LineVision Inc. is an innovative technology company that works with utilities to increase transmission line capacity, reliability and safety through advanced sensors and analytics. LineVision's data and analytics help utilities measure the performance of their assets, detect anomalies, and optimize operations and maintenance processes based on real-time, historical, and forecasted asset performance metrics. We are a rapidly growing, inclusive and highly motivated team.

Compensation for this role will include equity/ownership options.

Overview:

As a full stack software developer, you will be responsible for developing RESTful web APIs and end-user web applications with JavaScript, Node, and ReactJS. These applications and interfaces will deliver real-time, historical, and forecasted operational performance data about electric power infrastructure. We're looking for a teammate who thinks critically, communicates effectively, learns independently, and displays excellent attention to detail.

Qualifications

- Bachelors of Science in Computer Science, or equivalent work experience
- Strong Proficiency in JavaScript/ES6 (both client and server)
- Experience with React
- Knowledge of algorithms and design patterns
- Experience with SQL and other Relational Databases
- Experience in writing unit tests using widely-used testing frameworks

Pluses

- Experience with AWS Lambda and other AWS Services
- Experience with the Serverless Framework
- Experience with TypeScript
- Experience with Git or a similar version control system

Location

We are looking for a candidate willing to work from one of our two main office locations in:
- New Albany, IN USA (Louisville)
- Somerville, MA, USA (Boston)

This position may require limited travel to remote team offices & customer sites.
